Are you ready to launch a dynamic career in tax?

We are on the lookout for ambitious graduates who have completed or are in the process of completing a postgraduate degree or diploma in taxation. Our South African Institute of Taxation (SAIT) Traineeship is designed to expand the horizons of aspiring tax professionals. In this role, your responsibilities will include:

- Conducting research and presenting analyses on tax, technical and compliance matters
- Assisting with the preparation and review of corporate tax returns for the various companies, trusts and unit trusts within the Allan Gray group
- Providing support to client service teams supporting internal and external stakeholders on tax-related matters concerning Allan Gray and its product offering
- Participating in tax-related projects that affect various Allan Gray products, unit trusts and local and offshore legal entities
- Tax monitoring and risk assessment
- Keeping up with the latest industry developments

About the role

Trainees participating in our 36-month programme will rotate through different areas of the business that have a tax focus or are impacted by tax regulations and changes. We aim to provide an immersive, real-world, professional learning experience that presents tax trainees with the opportunity to:

- Develop technical knowledge of local and international taxation at an accelerated pace
- Learn from a broad range of teams that are responsible for tax, finance and business analysis
- Complete training programmes, attend seminars and partake in other professional development activities
- Work from our headquarters in Cape Town – relocation assistance is provided for successful candidates from outside the city

Qualifications and requirements

We are looking for high-performing and independent-minded candidates who:

- Are currently completing or have already obtained a postgraduate degree or diploma in taxation
- Have achieved an academic average of over 70%
- Achieved an average of 70% or higher in English and pure Mathematics in their National Senior Certificate examinations
- Are eligible to work in South Africa
