MARKET REVIEW

May was a roller coaster of a month which would have given most investors whiplash. Heading into May, sentiment was deeply negative after a string of poor economic indicators, high inflation prints and the Covid lockdown in China led to global recession concerns. The sector was down 7% by 25th May. However, sentiment quickly rebounded as investors became optimistic that inflation has already peaked and the Fed would be able to achieve a soft-landing of the US economy despite tightening monetary policy. The property sector pared its losses over the next 4 trading sessions to close roughly flat for the month. Bonds were the best performing asset class (+1.04%), followed by listed property (-0.32%) and equities (-0.36%).

Fortress B gained 13.7% in May as the company's management team announced it would seek a solution to the company share structure, leading to investors speculating a favourable ratio for B-shareholders. What the ultimate ratio will be, if any, is highly uncertain with A and B shareholders sitting on polar opposites of the spectrum. Octodec advanced 9.5% after it reported a rebound in operational activity, especially its CBD residential portfolio and an increase in its dividend per share. Hammerson fell 11% as fears mounted around the UK consumer health in light of rising costs of energy and overall cost of living. The ZAR was also about 1% stronger against the GBP during the month. Lighthouse shed 10.5% owing in part to an overhang of stock created from Resilient's distribution of shares in specie.

We are facing an uncertain macroeconomic environment with risks of a recession globally. Inflation, especially food remains the primary risk facing household income and rising interest rates will erode earnings growth, albeit marginally as debt is largely fixed. Having said that, the results season showed a stabilisation in fundamentals and even green shoots emerging with enquiries for office space picking up, regional shopping centres rentals recovering and industrial rentals also firming. Without significant deterioration in domestic economic growth and bond prices, we believe the sector will deliver mid teen total returns, which should comfortably beat inflation.
